I have a site I maintain as a hobby, and I'd like to host it on the same server that I have other web apps hosted. My site is simple to run in development, and I'd like to deploy it for a small audience at some point. Can I host the site on the same server as another app, e.g. a Flask app? A: Yes, this should be possible. How this works depends on the configuration of the host. You need to make sure that you can expose the site to the world, e.g. you need to ensure that port 80 is open for a user without being restricted to it. This is not to uncommon as many people that run a web host will offer this as part of the service. To make it easier you should ensure that you use the FastCGI application server, and that either apache or nginx is used as your web server. Of course, then you also have to make sure that the site doesn't run into conflicts with the other applications, which may be tricky if this is not your own site.
